EXPANDING HORIZONS – NEW COLLABORATION WITH GHANA’S UPSA

EKA is strengthening its global presence! Our Vice-Rector for Research, Prof. Jelena Titko, recently visited the University of Professional Studies, Accra (UPSA), Ghana as part of the Erasmus+ KA171 project.

What’s the big news? A new cooperation agreement between EKA and UPSA in research, opportunities for guest lectures and curriculum exchange, mutual participation in international conferences, plans to expand Erasmus+ mobility programs.

Why Ghana? UPSA and EKA share strong synergies in Business, Law, Marketing, Accounting, and more! This partnership opens doors to exciting academic and cultural exchanges.

JOINING THE COLLABORATIVE LIBRARY FOR OPEN SCIENCE

The Collaborative Library – is a community-driven platform where students, academics, and professionals can create video, audio, infographic, or written summaries of research articles in simple language – accessible for free to the public.

EKA has officially joined The Collaborative Library – a global platform that transforms complex research into easy-to-understand summaries.

EKA’S FIRST CONTRIBUTION
Dr. Jevgenija Dehtjare, Assoc. Prof., was the first EKA representative to upload a lay summary “The Most Dominant Career Drivers of Academic Staff”. Read it here

We encourage all EKA researchers to contribute! Let’s make science engaging and understandable for all!

ENHANCING RESEARCH VISIBILITY: NEW TOOLS FOR EKA RESEARCHERS

- The Researchers’ Guide – A comprehensive resource to navigate the research process, from publishing to funding opportunities. Explore it here: Researchers' Guide
- EKA Paper Repository – An open-access platform showcasing the latest research outputs from EKA, making knowledge more accessible to the global academic community. Discover it here: EKA Paper Repository

These tools empower researchers, foster collaboration, and ensure that valuable academic contributions reach a wider audience. Join us in advancing open-access research!

ADVANCING SOCIAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP: CONTRIBUTION TO THE ESEM REPORT

EKA is proud to contribute in the development of the European Social Enterprise Monitor (ESEM) 2023-2024 Report.

This initiative provides valuable insights into the social enterprise landscape across Europe, supporting policy development and innovation.
